Savs He Probably Will Put Through a Deal or Two During the Winter.

By FREDERICK G. LIEB.

Miller J. Huggins, for the last five was signed yesterday to manage hals, was signed year-day to manage the New York Yankees. The Huggins deal had been hanging fire for some time, but President Ruppert said he had not decided to engage nim until a few days ago. Huggins signed a two year ding his entire major league career in the National League. He went to the Cincinnati Reds in 1904 and played on his native city team until 1909, when he was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Beebe, a pitcher, and Storke, an out-fielder. In 1913 Huggins succeeded Roger Bresnahan as manager of the Cardinals and soon won the reputation of being of the shrewdest managers in the

Before Huggins took charge of the Cardinals they had had only one third place team. That was in 1876, the first year the National League was in existence. During the entire history of the Cardinals they have had only four first division teams and Huggins managed two of them.

After signing his contract Huggins splained the negotiations which led up his acceptance of Ruppert's offer. There are a lot of reports about me being signed by President Johnson, the New York club Rush Maps Out Line of Attack myself," said Huggins.

TF we are to accept the verdict of Bob Folwell, football coach at Pennsylvania, the Georgia Tech eleven is the strongest in the country, and Everett Strupper of the Atlanta Engineers is the greatest halfback the game has seen in many years. Folwell goes into ecstasies over Strupper and points out that great as Guyon, the old Carlisle Indian, who now is playing with Georgia Tech, has been for many seasons he does not compare Folwell's estimate of Georgia Tech and Strupper may be colored by Penn's experiences at Atlanta some weeks ago, when Georgia Tech wiped up the field with Folwell's eleven, 41 to 0. However, there is no disputing the fact that both Tech and its stalwart halfback are football marvels, made more marvelous by the wartime condition of most of the other varsity elevens. Under the handicap of repeated injuries to his leading players, the all too apparent unwillingness of the league to keep its promise of aid to the club, the idiosyncrasies of Slim Caldwell and the general ill will of Dame Fortune, Donovan had a hard row to hoe here. Mainly through in sport, and seventh was really better than it looks. He only where he sliced his second shot and had no bad hole, a 7 at the seventh, where he sliced his second shot and had in approach over a clump of trees. no fault of his own his managerial regime was a flat failure. However, in sport, and especially in professional baseball, success is the thing. No excuses are accepted—so Donovan goes, and he accepts the verdict with Inno hard feeling.

Huggins comes here with a record for efficiency without the lavish outlay of money. In St. Louis he rarely had more players than his immediate needs called for and the club spent practically no money in the acquisition of stars, yet Huggins pulled the team from last place in 1913 to third of stars, yet Huggins pulled the team from last place in 1913 to third position in 1917. The first club he built up was wrecked by the Federal League, yet he came right back and collected and developed the outfit that made so splendid a record during the season just closed. Huggins seems to have the knack of getting results—and the Yankees surely need them.
